Affairs and International Development (MAID) has been supporting the Indo-French D'Himalayan Women's Association (IDHWA) in the Shodhnathpur village in Eastern Nepal. "The village was just a remote village until the past two years, when the IDHWA began to visit it regularly," says Anjali Sharma, IDHWA secretary.
In 2009, Anjali Sharma and Roopi Rajkali started a small office for the IDHWA in Shodhnathpur, which had no electricity or running water. It also had no schools or literacy classes. Anjali Sharma, now the IDHWA's secretary general, recounts that before the IDHWA's arrival, most of the children of the village had to attend schools and send their children to the local tuition. When the IDHWA began to work in the village, Rupi Rajkali, its treasurer, set up a small book shop. The IDHWA bought the 150 most popular books for the Mycroft's Pride: The prologue was recreated from the original Sherlock Holmes Canon; the game itself was designed and developed by a dev team made up of fans of the Sherlock Holmes' Canon; including the introduction of a text-less prologue. This prologue shows a glimpse of events leading up to the events in the story, as well as the return of Irene Adler in modern times. It also provides an explanation for why Mycroft is so called and his relationship to Sherlock, what he is doing in London, as well as his dedication to his work.

The prologue was designed to be as accurate as possible, while providing a much shorter experience than the main game. This prologue is only available through this content pack. This prologue is also excluded from the Epilogue. Mycroft's Pride features various scenes (in-game) and/or images of multiple members of the Holmes' Canon, such as those depicted in the prologue, as well as a re-creation of a lecture scene from

The Adventure of the Six Napoleons, which also brings back a number of characters from that story. It also features several of the characters from the Canon in different settings, such as a recreated version of the original Holmes' home. The first of the two cases were featured in the original Sherlock Holmes Canon. The second of the two cases were featured in the Arthur Conan Doyle Stories. The first case takes place in a completely rebuilt version of the original Sherlock Holmes home in London, reconstructed for the game's purpose. This version of the home is the same version shown in The Adventure of the Second Stain. This case also takes place in an alternate reality that parallels Sherlock's Universe. This case, and the events that occur in it, are a result of the circumstances that will be discussed in the second case. The second case takes place in Paris. This is the original version of the location that was shown in The Final Problem. Here, Sherlock and Watson investigate the mysterious killing of one of Adler's clients, who appears to have died of a brain hemorrhage. Watson manages to befriend one of the last of Adler's clients, Lady Angouleme, who claims that she was hired to have her stepson framed for the murder. However, it is discovered that she has been hired by an organization run by the Russian Secret Service, the Okhrana, and the authorities are unable to find any evidence to charge her stepson. The case

Lum: Hide from Nightmares is an ongoing manga series written by Natsumi Akita and illustrated by Katsumi Enami. It started serialization on the free manga distribution website Manga Life between November 13, 2010 and December 24, 2011. After several publishing stops and numerous extensions, a limited edition of 1104 copies, comprising all of the chapters to date, was published by Gakken in April 2016. In July 2018, the manga license and rights was passed to a new publisher Tokyopop who has since bought back the rights. Tokyopop began republishing the series with a new regular release in April 30, 2019. Story In the future, humanity has formed a large-scale megacorporation, and in the virtual world "Revenge", the weak are treated as prey while the strong live as their kings. When the "King" of the virtual world is killed, Takumi Aiba is exiled. Rejected by people who accept virtual reality but hate humanity, he envisions the world of a normal virtual player. Driven to study, he ends up at the elite AISA university. At AISA, he meets the AIO agent Lum, and enters a challenging school-life filled with surprises. Characters Lum is a character agent of the world of AISA (All Internet Service Agents), based on his special abilities, the role-playing games Hayao Miyazaki's Nausicaä of the Valley of the Wind and the anime series Disgaea; but unlike the others, Lum feels life is better than in virtual reality, as long as you're not an El — a boss in Revenge. Lum destroys enemies with a hidden card displayed on his sunglasses, with the use of either "weak" enemies to use them skillfully or "strong" enemies to toss them away. The form of Lum is varied, but his design has been described as possessing an "effortless coolness". Lum has a lazy personality; his catchphrase is. Lum can cry tears when he is in shock that other people have become AIOs; his tears are sometimes a purple color and called "tears of sadness". Lum's guilty reaction to other people is shown in chapter 187. His sad expression is shown in chapter 263. When participating in Legend, Lum can draw any game feature he has access to. By the chapter 266, he has drawn all of the cards in the game. A bonus is
