Master The Photoshop Layers Concept This tutorial will teach you how to master Photoshop's basic layers system so that you can perform more complicated tasks later. Quickly create a layered window in Photoshop that will serve as the basis for a new image and then use this layer to edit the image.

1. Create a New Document Choose File → New and type a new document name for the image, such as "Stitched", and then choose a folder where you want to save the image. This will create a new image that's 8.2 x 11 inches.
2. Create a New Layer To start work on the image, create a new layer by selecting Layer → New (or clicking on the icon in the Layers panel that looks like a new paintbrush). Name the layer "canvas". Photoshop will allow you to drag the canvas around in the document to wherever you want it to be, so you could easily drag it directly on top of the rest of the photo to turn this example into a collage. 3. Select the Canvas Layer With the canvas layer selected (you can use the Layer panel's drop-down menu to select a layer and check that it's highlighted green at the top of the Layers panel), select Image → Canvas Size to set the size of the canvas to 8.2 x 11 inches. 4. Name the Canvas Layer Once you have the canvas set up to size, simply click once on the canvas layer to name it and stop using the keyboard. 5. Start Painting To start painting, click once on your canvas on the left. This will select the canvas, and click again to start painting. The canvas will appear in the Paintbrush tool. There is also a white area in the upper right of the window where you can see the layer styles. There are additional tools available, such as Eraser and Magic Wand. To change the brush size, choose the Brush Preset drop-down menu at the top of the Layers panel and choose the brush size you want. We've selected a brush size of 10 pixels. You can choose from dozens of brush sizes in Photoshop as well as brush mode, opacity, and blending mode. 6. Add a Background To paint the background, we will start with white. Click once on the canvas window to select it. Then while still in the Paintbrush
