V8.Q: How can I display a body of text wrapped in p tags in the richtextbox of visual studio I am using visual studio for a project that requires the user to enter a password into the richtextbox of windows forms, the password should not exceed a certain number of characters in length. The problem is the user can enter 1 or more passwords and i have to append these in an xml file. One of the solutions is to separate the password into different paragraph of no more than 100 characters by a line feed character. This is fine but the user will not understand how to do this in Visual Studio as it will strip the formatting and display the text as is. Is there a way to display the text as is e79caf774b
