Looks like there aren't any results for this.Field of the Invention This invention relates to a clutch engaging mechanism for a steering shaft of a four wheel steering vehicle in which the front wheels or the rear wheels are steered by a steerable road wheel. The steering shaft is constantly rotating during the operation of the vehicle. The rotating shaft must be held by a clutch engaging mechanism in a position in which the steerable road wheels can be steered by the steered road wheel. The clutch engaging mechanism also has an adjusting mechanism to adjust the engaging force or the slipping of the clutch. One known clutch engaging mechanism is a screw mechanism employing a screw member, which engages with an engaging nut and which is rotated in one direction to release the clutch and in the other direction to engage the clutch and a release mechanism to act on the screw member. It is sometimes difficult to engage the clutch by applying a torque from a side of the screw mechanism so that the engaging nut is engaged with the screw member because the screw member is prevented from rotating in the same direction as the engaging nut by the release mechanism. Although it is relatively easy to disengage the clutch by applying a torque from the side of the screw member, the screw member is rotated in the same direction as the engaging nut to release the clutch by the release mechanism, and accordingly the release mechanism itself is rotated. A switch mechanism may be provided so that the clutch engaging mechanism is disengaged when the switch mechanism is operated to avoid the abovementioned disadvantage. In this case, however, the clutch engaging mechanism cannot be assembled for the steering shaft for the reason of the space required for the switch mechanism on the inner wall of the vehicle body. 5ec8ef588b
